Prepare both a summary paragraph and a general description of the resource and its various elements as it exists today.

This Italianate style house is two stories tall, five bays wide, with a low-pitch hip roof and bracketed eaves. Among the well preserved entrance details are the pilasters, side and transom lights, and a four panel door with round-arched upper panels.

The entrance on Sixth Street has a glass panel with an elaborate frosted design of a mother and child surrounded by roses.

A one story gable roofed addition was put onto the west elevation. In addition, a large rear section of this house was removed to the adjacent lot and is now a separate house at 106 South Sixth Street.
